Woodstock, Connecticut is one of 35 Towns located in The Last Green Valley, National Heritage Corridor. The working farms of Woodstock are a main reason that the guidebook, 1,000 Places to See Before You Die, cites Woodstock as possessing "tranquility, history and pastoral good looks." Woodstock was one of the first Towns in CT to pass a local Right-to-Farm ordinance, demonstrating its commitment to its working landscape, which provide jobs, fresh food, and beautiful views.

Woodstock is home to Celebrating Agriculture, held annually on the fourth Saturday of September at the Woodstock Fairgrounds. For more information about this event filled with agricultural displays, family events, food and entertainmen, go to www.celebratingagriculture.org.

The Woodstock Agriculture Commission is part of a statewide initiative to promote locally grown, in season products, as well as other Connecticut produced foods. When you become a 10% partner in buying products, you lend support to local growers while providing the finest quality foods to your family. This is a collaborative fully supported by the University of Connecticut Extension Service and the Woodstock Agriculture Commission.

To find out more about this program, go to buyetgrown.com or contact the Woodstock Agriculture Commission at townofwoodstock.com

You hold the key to the future of our agriculture by buying food, fiber and forest products from local farms, businesses, farmers markets and farm stands; and by supporting town or state policies that keep farms and forests viable.
